Other Resources

- Air Quality Updates:
 - The official AirNow Air Quality Index (note: usually lags current conditions by about 2-3 h)
 - The unofficial Purple Air network from crowd-sourced low-cost monitors (note: these are often biased high by a factor of 1.5-2 for wood smoke, are not quality controlled, but are real-time and trends are likely good)

Housing Assistance for Students

As I'm sure you know, the stress of finding housing has been amplified for students this year due to COVID. Many students have yet to find leases in the Davis area that offer the accommodations they need. Luckily, because of the currently high vacancy rates in the city, many landlords are interested in working with ASUCD to provide certain accommodations for students still looking for housing.

ASUCD has created a survey (found in the graphic below) where students still in need of housing for the upcoming year can provide us with information about their needs and circumstances. They will do their best to match them with property managers in the area that can meet their needs.

THE UNDERGRADUATE RESEARCH CENTER PRESENTS

2020 UNDERGRADUATE RESEARCH WEEK

The Undergraduate Research Center is excited to announce their 2020 Undergraduate Research Week featuring a collection of asynchronous and live virtual/online events from Monday, October 12 through Friday, October 16, 2020. They will be encouraging new and returning undergraduate students to learn about opportunities for research and creative activities in all disciplines across campus.

The URC will be hosting several activities and workshops via Zoom, and they also invite members of your college/department or organization to participate in order to promote research and discovery experiences for students across campus. They would like to suggest focusing on what research opportunities look like in your college/department and how students can remain engaged with you and your colleagues during remote learning.

They encourage departments, colleges, clubs, and student organizations to organize an activity to highlight undergraduate research opportunities and creative activities in their unit or being performed by their students. The type of activity and scheduling is entirely up to you based on the goals of your unit/department/college. Some ideas from past events include faculty/student panels, talk series (e.g. presented by UG researchers or faculty interested to work with UG researchers), and/or a virtual research “fair” for students to connect with other undergraduate researchers and potential mentors. They are happy to brainstorm and consult with you about ideas for either pre-recorded/asynchronous or live events. They will also help you advertise and publicize your event to students across campus. See attached for a flyer that you can share with faculty, staff and students, and more details can be found online here.

Some highlights from last year:

- Research Poster Display hosted by Shields Library
- URC-hosted daily student-given seminars regarding research programs
- Chemistry-hosted Undergraduate Research panel and networking event
- And much more!

Please email emnunez@ucdavis.edu with questions and/or to let them know what you have planned and they will include your event in our published schedule for the week.
